ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A hardware resources partitioning means partitions hardware resources that are necessary to the operation of a second operating system from a hardware resources management table before activation of a first operating system. After a second operating system activation means activates the second operating system, a first operating system activation means activates the first operating system.